JESUS TEMPTED. The temptation of Jesus has been atfrined most difficult of all events to interpret. The difficulty is reduced to a minimum if one keeps in mind that Jesus had a true human coul. This was the citadel the devil sought to storm In his human nature, Jesus must needs make the transit from the innocence which may be called instinctive to that which is the outcome of choice. This transit was not made entirely in this ordeal of the temptation, though this ordeal of the temptation, though this may have been its crucial epoch. The traditional scene of this dread encounter—"the Forty-day Mountain"—is singularly in harmony. It is still "a patiliess", desert, dusk with horrid shades?" Thither Jesus had gone, impelled by the consciousness of his Messianic mission, which may have fully dawned upon him in his baptism. He sought to adjust himself to his calling—to test his resources, and determine a test his resources, and determine a of procedure. . . . It is perhaps ferent whether one believes this a ndifferent wiether one believes this a tieral approach of a personal devil, of figurative description of a moral struggle entirely subjective. The first empitation was to use the intracleverking power (of which he had just ome to consciousness) purely for personal ends, and untrustfully of his Father's care. The second temptation was to create an emergency which would test his Father's care. The third wollditation was to the double service Tod and mammon. It has been well the desert is to sum up in expressiv nbols the whole programme of the se Messianic dreams of the Jews only disguised under holy words and earthly ambition." . . . the first Adam so ignominiously Where the first Adam so ignominiously failed in the transit from natural innocence to the holiness of choice, the second Adam triumphed gloriously. He did this, too, as man, not as God. It was the victory of our humanity, as Jesus perfectly identified himself with us; just such a victory as each of us may win. The weapons he used, also, are the very ones we are to handle: Faith, prayer, Scripture, As Jesus, in his human nature, was made perfect by his successful resistance of temptation, so shall we be. There is both exmplary and inspirational force in th on, so shall we be. There is both temptation of Jesus. He was tempted as we are. He was tempted in his hu-man nature. A patent bullet-proof cloth is claimed to have been invented; can be made not garments of light weight, and abolately protect the wearer. Did the dimity of Jesus form such an impenerable armor? Was it impossible for suggestions of evil to enter his soul? then, how was he tempted as we are? such a theory reduces Jesus' encounter of a sham fight..... The human soul of Jesus was not overslaughed by the livine. The temptation was addressed to Jesus' true humanity. As second d. The devil has a subtle power to spread a mirage of all the kingdoms of earth, and ell their glory and "barbarle gems of geld," before the eyes of the ambitious, and proffer them all if only one will install him as master. Pily is, so many fall to thrust the tempter through with the sword of the Spirit, and say: "It stands written, "Worship the Lord, and him only shalt thou serve." ... The advantage of familiarity with the Bible is here exemplified. The sword of the Spirit, which is the Word of God, is ever the Christian's trustlest weapon.

CHICAGO—Good milling demand and heavy exports again made a strong wheat market to-day out of a rather weak one, the May option closing at 1½c advance over yesterday's figures. July was also strong, advancing %c. Corn and oats were firm, especially the latter, which closed %@%e higher, while corn advanced %c. Provisions closed 5@ 12%c higher.

Wheat opened a shade under yesterday's closing price, but soon recovered. For an hour the direction of prices was steadily but cautiously upward. From 99%c at the start May had risen by 10:30 o'clock to 91%c bid. The early slight decline was due in part to reports of rain in California, where yesterday it was said wheat prospects were being injured by draught.

The Minneapolis and Duluth receipts were 333 cars, against 507 the receipts were 333 cars, against 507 the corresponding day of the week before, and 178 the similar day of last year. Chicago got thirty-six carloads, compared with twenty-five a year ago, Of to-day's receipts only three cars were contract, but seven cars and 15,000 bushels. 130,000 bushels of wheat, which was taken is an indication of iloeral aggregate exports of wheat and flour for the day. The signal service predicted rain to be followed by a cold wave for a large part of the winter wheat country. The market received additional stimulus from the Atlantic and Guif port clearances which aggregated 960,000 bushels and by 11:30 o'clock May had advanced to 91½c. Local milling demand for carloads of off grade wheat was such that May price was paid for some No. 3 wheat. Minneapolls reported 3½c premium over May price paid there for No. 1 porthern and an excellent demand for all grades of spot and to arrive.

The Liverpool market closed at from 1/2d to 3/2d advance on the previous lay's closing prices. The market hesitated on expectations of a visible increase of from L00,000 bushels to 1,000,000 bushels Monday, but the Paris cash demand and reports from New York of 200d export, engagements made the market very firm late in the session. May sold at 91% e at the close, the high point of the day.

The market for corn broadened out some to-day and trading was fairly active and general. Prices were helped by the strength shown by oats and by the small country offerings. The rally in wheat was also quite influential, as was the ratified condition of east-bound rail rates. May ranged from 29%@29%c.

rail rates. May ranged from 29%@29%c to 29%c and closed %c higher at 29%@

Oats led the course grains both in strength and in activity. Shippers were free bilders of futures and shorts were active buyers throughout. There was said to be a revival of the export demand and claims of heavy business yesterday was made. The market was also helped by the break in rail rates. May ranged from 2% to 23%c and closed %6%c higher at 23%c.

Provisions, though not especially active were strong. The market at first showed some inclination toward easiness, but the strength developed in all the grain markets encouraged buyers and caused some covering by shorts. The selling was scattered. The advance was well maintained to the end. At the close May pork was 12%c higher at close May pork was 121/2c higher a $9 35; May lard 5c higher at $4 871/2 and May ribs 714c higher at $4 70.
